10.2 Trees

A healthy portion of the property (2/3 of the total land or thereabout) is covered with a mix of trees, most notably cashew and mango trees. Upon further research it was determined to be 58 mango trees in the property (albeit 10 of them falling on or very close to the property boundary) and 10 cashew trees on the property as well (albeit 4 lying on or very close to the boundary) taking it up to a total of 68 trees in the property with 14 lying on or very close to the boundary. (Side note: The 14 trees would have to totally make way or have some branches cut off in the event that a boundary fence is to be installed.) It is believed that $\frac{3}{4}$ of the trees within the property are bearing fruit (but it is yet to be confirmed)
